

THE KINDERTRANSPORT ASSOCIATION OFFERS KTA MEMORY QUILT REPLICAS FOR EXHIBITION

The Kindertransport Association is making life-size replicas of quilts created by Kindertransport Survivors and their families available for exhibition. Three Kindertransport quilt replicas, true to size at 70" tall, 62" wide, have been beautifully printed on sturdy vinyl cloth to create a beautiful traveling version of these treasured artifacts. The original quilts are on permanent display at The Holocaust Memorial Center in Michigan.

THE STORY OF THE KINDERTRANSPORT

In the nine months before the outbreak of World War II, nearly 10,000 Jewish children were sent, without their parents, from Nazi Europe to safety in Great Britain in the rescue movement now known as the Kindertransport. Once in Britain, the children were placed with foster parents, in group homes or hostels. Most never saw their parents again.

THE STORY OF THE KINDERTRANSPORT QUILTS

In 1988, Anita Grosz, the daughter of Kindertransport Survivor Hanus Grosz, came up with the idea of preserving memories of the Kindertransport experience through quilts. Kindertransport Association members, Kindertransport Survivors and their families, created quilt squares to remember and honor the families they lost, and the quilts became a vital, unique, and visually compelling Holocaust memorial.
